STATEMENT ON EU REGULATION

for deforestation-free products (EUDR)

Dear Sir or Madam

The ZIEGLER GROUP attaches great importance to sustainability and environmental compatibility throughout the entire production chain. In this context, we are closely following the developments surrounding the EU regulation on deforestation (EUDR) and the associated requirements.

The ZIEGLER GROUP deliberately relies on extensive in-house vertical integration in wood processing in order to be able to ensure a sustainable supply of raw materials at all times and without gaps from its own sources. From sawn timber, glulam and cross laminated timber to wood fibre insulation boards and pellets – this broad product range is not only an expression of our flexibility, but also of our responsibility for a resource-saving and sustainable production method.

The EUDR places high demands on the traceability and sustainability of wood products, which is in line with our entire corporate philosophy. Our in-house experts continuously analyse and review all EUDR developments to ensure that we continue to meet regulatory and environmental requirements at all times. We are already working on adapting our existing processes and supply chains so that all EUDR provisions can be fully implemented. Our annual PEFC certification, as well as our recently achieved SURE certification in all production areas, already confirm this commitment and are an expression of our sense of responsibility.

Our aim is not only to fulfil legal requirements, but also to act as a pioneer for sustainable and responsible action in the timber industry. Thanks to our comprehensive value chain, we can guarantee the origin and quality of our products at all times and continue to offer our customers sustainable products. As there are still uncertainties regarding the practical implementation of the EUDR, future adjustments cannot be ruled out. We thank you in advance for your understanding.

Yours sincerely
